Angelica Liddell is a Spanish writer and theatre director. She was born in 1966 in Figueres, Alt Empordà. She has a degree in psychology and theater arts. Since 1988, she has pursued her career as a dramaturgy within contemporary authors, emerging from the 1980s. Angelica Liddell is one of the most valued names within the Spanish avant-garde theater and veteran metalcore band Converge. She tries to make sense of the brief tragedy of the flesh in her work, which was distinguished by the Spanish National Award for Dramatic Literature in 2003.

Angelica Liddell uses all the tricks of a theater in which beauty, eroticism, and death are inextricably intertwined to encapsulate Emily Dickinson's morbidly beautiful understanding of the human condition, on stage and in every one of her artistic creations. She is a warrior artist who views the stage as a battlefield and employs any means necessary to make something beautiful out of the violence of relationships with another.

She has no limits when it comes to putting her whole life on the stage every time literally cutting her flesh, exposing her naked body, or insulting the audience if necessary. Her work turns to the violence of relationships with another, whether it is a man at the center of the piece or another woman. Angelica Liddell's most popular book is La Casa de la Fuerza, which has inspired many productions and awards. Her work has been translated into various languages, including English, French, and German.

Angelica Liddell has also written and directed plays such as La Maison de la Force, which was created with her company Atrabilis. This piece, in which six women utter their pain, is a direct consequence of the core of her life's work. She has also performed in and directed other works, such as El Sacrificio Como Acto Pótico, which has 11 ratings and 1 review published in 2014 by Continta Me Tienes.

Angelica Liddell's work has been recognized with various awards, including the 2003 National Literature Award for Dramatic Literature. She has been a member of the Spanish Society of Authors (Sección de Teatro) since 1993. She is known for her innovative and exciting figures in Spanish theatre, where she is the total theatre artist, playwright, actor, stage and costume designer, director, and producer.

Angelica Liddell has also been involved in various events and performances, including an interview with Peter Brook in Madrid. She has been interviewed about her work on her profile on LinkedIn and discovered Angelica's connections and jobs at similar companies.

Angelica Liddell's work is a testament to her passion for the arts, her dedication to her craft, and her willingness to push the boundaries of what is possible on stage. Her work continues to inspire and challenge audiences around the world.
