The call of the Wild along with many other popular books is a pioneer in the then budding genre of adventure fiction. The book was published in 1906, and it quickly became a bestseller. The story of Keesh by Jack London is another of his adventures during the 1890s Klondike gold rush when strong sled dogs were in high demand. London was an American author who wrote the Call of the Wild, White Fang, and many other popular books. He was a prolific writer and a pioneer in the genre of adventure fiction. London's works were often characterized by their themes of survival, struggle, and the will to overcome adversity. His stories were not only entertaining but also had a deeper meaning, reflecting the human spirit and the struggle for existence in a harsh and unforgiving world. London's writing was infused with a sense of realism and a deep understanding of the human condition. His works continue to be popular and relevant today, offering a glimpse into the past and a reminder of the resilience of the human spirit.
