Peter Ferdinand Drucker was a writer, management consultant, and self-described social ecologist. Widely considered to be the father of modern management, his 39 books and countless scholarly and popular articles explored how humans are organized across all sectors of society.

Drucker was born in Vienna, Austria on November 19, 1909 and died in Claremont, California on November 11, 2005. He was a prolific author and among the first after Taylor and Fayol to depict management as a distinct function and being a manager as a philosophy of management. His mentors, breadth of influence, and passion for management philosophy made him one of the most influential thinkers in the field of management, with his work continuing to be used by managers worldwide.

Drucker was an early proponent of management by objectives (MBO), which was originally an article published by him in 1954 in the Harvard Business Review. Peter Drucker was a prolific writer who authored over 35 books, with his first book, "The Effective Executive," published in 1969. He was also known for his work on management of corporations, management by objectives, and management by results. Drucker's ideas have had a profound impact on the practice of management, and his legacy lives on through the Peter Drucker School of Management and the Drucker Institute, which preserve and promote his work.

Drucker's ideas have influenced business leaders, academics, and policymakers around the world. He is remembered for his insightful thoughts on management, leadership, and organizational development, and his books and articles continue to be read and studied by business leaders and management scholars today.
Peter Ferdinand Drucker was born on November 19, 1909, in Vienna, Austria. His parents, Adolph and Caroline, regularly held evening salons with economists including Joseph Schumpeter, who would come to have a tremendous influence on Drucker's ideas. The household in which he grew up was one of great intellectual ferment.

Drucker became a lawyer and a high-ranking civil servant in the Austrian-Hungarian government before leaving Vienna in 1927 to work for an export firm in Hamburg, Germany. He then went on to study law at the University of Hamburg and to study business and economics in the United States. Drucker became their teacher.

Drucker's ideas were the panacea for institutional giants of his time and the business climate of the 80s was ripe for adopting them. He treated both innovation and management in turbulent times as management challenges for the 21st century. Managing in turbulent times and the practice of management were two of his books that have been influential in the field of business management.

Drucker was often referred to as the father of modern management and is known for his high standards and genuine desire to help others grow. He was a writer, management consultant, and self-described social ecologist. His books and scholarly and popular articles explored how humans are organized across all sectors of society.

Drucker was a member of the Claremont Colleges. The Global Peter Drucker Forum is an annual event organized by the Peter Drucker Society Europe. The Drucker Institute is an unparalleled resource closely aligned with the legacy of Peter Drucker.
